ANDANTE.

Oh give me a home, in the bright sun.ny South, Where mur.mur the breezes of Gon.do.la's isle; Where the sweetest of flowers their o - dors pour forth , And whispering their love , give heaven a smile , And whispering their love , give heav - en a smile .

2.

Where lilies are playing and dahlias recline ,
 On the snowdrop of heaven so pure and divine ;
 The wild cactus turns its eyes to the sun ,
 As the sweetest of flowers has its sweetness begun .

3.

Oh land of my birth, how dear are thy plains ,
 Thy valleys' pure streams, thy mountains in chains ;
 Thy blue tinted sky with its sunlight at even ,
 Makes the fairest of earth, reflecting on heaven .

4.

When life shall have wasted its beauty away ,
 Or the sweet bud of youth, be found to decay ;
 There's one spot of earth, — with heaven as its sky ,
 In the bright sunny south, there, there let me die .
